Kirkwood was entertained yesterday by a tramp who was a most peculiar spocimen. He had a lot of dogs which he had collected during his trip from Kansas Chy east, and he had these trained as expert beggars. In this way the animals secured his and their own food.

The dogs would not carry off any honors at the dog show. In all there were six of them. One might have been, three or four generations back, a water spaniel. Two others were small, short-haired dogs that might be classed as fox terriars. The other three animals were larger and had been picked up along the Missouri Pacific somewhere between Jefferson City and Kirkwood.

The tramp, who gave his name as Charles Osborn Hernsley Smith, to distinguish himself, he sald, from other Smiths, struck Kirkwood about noon yesterday. Carbondale, Ill., May 2.—Several weeks. Thompson and his wife were married in Belleville April 9, 1889. They lived together until November E, 1816. Shortly after this time Thompson went to Omaha, Neb.,

where he remained for six months and filed a suit for divorce from his wife on the ground of desertion.

A decree of divorce was granted him October 27, 1839. He came to St. Louis immediately and a month afterward went to Belleville, where he was married to Mrs. Margaret A. Penny. Mrs. Thompson the first heard of the divorce proceedings about this time and instituted proceedings in the District Court at Omaha, with a view of having the divorce decree annulled. This she succeeded in doing and the case was continued to the May term of the court, when it will be retried. The subsequent marriage of Thompson to Mrs. Penny was rendered illegal by the action of the Nebraska court in revoking the decree.
